Dear Hiring Manager,

Seller support and marketplace operations have been the core of my work for the last 4 years, including nearly three years at Amazon. I bring a steady record of resolving complex seller issues across account health, listings, payments, and policy workflows, while keeping customer experience and compliance front and center. This background fits well with Germany based e-commerce and marketplace teams that need disciplined case handling, strong RCA, and reliable SLA delivery.

At Amazon, I managed end to end seller case resolution in high volume queues, handled escalations, and consistently met turnaround targets. My approach combines precise triage in CRM tools, clear policy guidance, and performance trend analysis to prevent repeat defects. These efforts supported 90 percent plus seller satisfaction and improved first time fix through structured root cause work and close collaboration with program and operations partners.

In my most recent role at Mouri Tech, I focused on workflow excellence and quality. I identified bottlenecks in daily operations, standardized steps through SOP updates, and introduced simple automation in Excel and CRM tracking. The result was measurable reduction in rework and faster, more accurate delivery for 50 to 70 cases per day, alongside strong QA outcomes.

I am now looking for Seller Support Specialist or Marketplace Operations roles in Germany where I can help sellers succeed, protect platform integrity, and raise service performance through data backed improvements. My English is at full professional proficiency and I am building German at B1 level to integrate quickly in a local team. I would welcome the chance to discuss how this experience can support your sellers and operations goals.

Sincerely,
Aditya Gajula
