Dear Hiring Manager,

Inventory and logistics roles in Germany appeal strongly to me because they demand the same discipline, stock accuracy and delivery reliability that I have built over more than eight years in FMCG distribution. As Proprietor of Jayesh Multi Trade, I manage end-to-end operations for an independent distribution business, from procurement and warehousing through inventory control, order fulfilment and debtor management. This experience gives me a practical understanding of how to keep warehouses organised, stock clean and deliveries on time in demanding environments.

In my current role, I handle FMCG distribution for leading national brands such as Hindustan Unilever, L'Oréal India, Patanjali, Hamdard, Tata Consumer, Hershey and Mars. Day-to-day responsibilities include GRN, put-away, FIFO and batch management, cycle counts, stock reconciliation and variance review. I use Marg ERP, Tally Prime and Excel for billing, reconciliations, exception closure and performance tracking, which helps sustain a 98%+ order fill rate and stable OTIF. Route planning and dispatch for 15+ daily delivery routes across Central India have trained me to coordinate 3PL partners, drivers and delivery windows with tight control.

Earlier at Shyam Seva TeleAgency, my path moved from dispatch and cash desk roles into accounts, administrative support and finally Operations Supervisor for inventory and logistics. This progression built a detailed understanding of warehouse operations, order-to-cash cycles and debtor follow-ups from the ground up. I led regular cycle counts and GRN-ledger checks to keep stock positions clean, tuned reorder points with sales inputs to reduce stockouts and aged inventory, and supported collections through a simple but disciplined dunning cadence. Training in analytics through an IIM Indore program strengthened my ability to use data to refine replenishment, stock levels and reporting.

German employers can expect a hands-on operations professional who works comfortably with SOPs, 5S basics, safety checklists and clear documentation. Teams I support receive practical training, straightforward processes and consistent follow-up so service levels stay predictable. I speak English at a full professional level and have elementary German (A2, learning), with a strong willingness to continue language development. I would welcome the opportunity to contribute to inventory management, warehouse operations, logistics coordination or supply chain roles in Germany and to discuss how my FMCG distribution experience can support your organisation.

Sincerely,

Jayesh Wadhwani
